The magazine is distributed to an average of 14,660* subscribers, and its website is visited by thousands of HME industry professionals every month.

“This year’s edition of our annual awards program was wild, as we had a lot of neck-and-neck competition between lots of entrants in some specific categories,” HME Business Publisher and Executive Editor David Kopf remarked. “We saw that in particular with accreditation, specialized business technology solutions, power and manual wheelchairs, and in-home respiratory equipment.

“So there was a lot of judging to be done by our panel of HME provider judges,” Kopf continued. “And of course, I want to congratulate our winners and extend my appreciation to all the vendors for sending in their entries. The result is an awards program that showcases some great solutions.”

Kopf added that next year’s edition of HME Business New Product Award will feature even more categories to help providers discover even more top-tier industry offerings.

Information about the 2022 HME Business New Product Award will be available at hme-business.com in the summer of 2022.
